FORTHCOMING RESEARCH PRIORITIES

As guest editor, “Liturgical Studies: Christian Worship, Sacramental Practice,” for Religions.

Submitted first to Calvin Theological Journal, a version of the unpublished contribution to the Roman Catholic - Reformed Dialog “From Formula to ‘Freedom,’” as referenced elsewhere. In addition to the current content, in this article or a supplementary article, propose a contemporized version of the Heidelberg/1566 Netherlands form for celebrating the Lord’s Supper for use in churches today. Perhaps eventually develop a parallel study of the baptismal forms used in the Christian Reformed Church, and propose a similarly contemporized liturgy for use in churches today.

Baptism and anamnesis, an article-length study.

A book-length project on anamnesis as it relates to worship, proclamation, and participation in the sacraments, including affirming the priority of baptism but being liturgically and pastorally nimble in a post-Christian context.

Once upon a time, for the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship, for the The Church at Worship series (Eerdmans), a volume on Johann Sebastian Bach and Lutheran liturgical life in Leipzig. The original prospectus is no longer viable, but I wonder what opportunity might still be here.

Once upon a time, for the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship, for the The Church at Worship series (Eerdmans), a volume on daily prayer at Pentecost in the Abbey of Clairvaux during the 12th century, when Bernard of Clairvaux was abbot. The original prospectus is no longer viable, but I wonder what opportunity might still be here.
